

New Testament

- 1) Course: MTC002, New Testament
- 2) Length – 16hrs
- 3) Course Description: A brief study of the Gospels and Epistles of the New Testament through a Lutheran missional set of lenses with an emphasis on their authorship and contents.
- 4) Instructional Goals and Objectives:
  - a) Being (Spiritual Formation) Objectives: The student will
    - i) become more deeply engaged and involved in the study of Scripture;
    - ii) become spiritually formed as a child of God;
    - iii) humbly accept the New Testament as God’s Word and self-revelation to the world;
    - iv) appreciate studying the historical and geographical context of the New Testament;
    - v) gain excitement in knowing that the study of the God’s missionary activity in the New Testament leads to a fuller expression of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.
  - b) Knowing (Cognitive Formation) Objectives: The student will
    - i) recognize that the life of Christ and God’s clear teaching and activity in the New Testament is intricately connected to His mission and purpose for the world;
    - ii) grasp the importance of Biblical genre, local culture, and worldviews to better understand the primary meaning of the New Testament and its teaching for people today.
  - c) Doing (Conative Formation) Objectives: The student will
    - i) identify the occasions, authors, contents, and main themes of the New Testament books in light of God’s mission movement in the world;
    - ii) apply general hermeneutical principles used by mainstream Christian churches to read and interpret portions of the New Testament;
    - iii) identify specific incidents of Jesus’ ministry and show how they fulfill Old Testament prophecy;
    - iv) work with the cultural realities and milieu in order to more clearly understand the meaning of narratives and Biblical teachings.